Perry Ellis International Hurricane Relief Effort Emphasizes “We’re in it With You”

MIAMI, Florida (November 2012) – Perry Ellis International, Inc. (PEI) the company behind such brands as Perry Ellis, Original Penguin, Laundry by Shelli Segal, Rafaella, licensed Callaway golf apparel, and many others, knows a lot about natural disaster recovery. With headquarters in Miami, Florida and global offices around the world (including locations in New York and New Jersey), dealing with the aftermath of storms like Hurricane Andrew, Katrina, Wilma, and now Sandy, PEI has learned how to overcome these challenges, quickly, efficiently and with great resilience.

Being the start of what may be a long, cold winter, facing a nor’easter which threatens an onslaught of blizzards and plummeting temperatures, and receiving valuable feedback from associates affected in the area, PEI knew that just food, water, diapers and dollars were not going to be enough to keep people without power, heat or shelter warm through the season. Winter clothing had to be provided, and soon. So immediately, PEI dug into its current New Jersey warehouse supply and pulled Perry Ellis jackets for distribution throughout the area. And that was just the start.

Simultaneously, PEI associates in Miami pulled together a Hurricane Sandy Relief Effort, utilizing the company’s global customer database, asking for assistance in making a difference. Through channels like e-mail and social media brand fans were asked to donate coats, jackets and other warm clothing while PEI offered a match incentive. For every item received, the company would donate new outerwear up to 5,000 total pieces. An internal collection program was also created throughout other PEI offices, including Miami, Tampa, New York, Los Angeles and others, in order for associates to participate in the matched clothing drive.

“I am truly inspired by the people I work with. It is a great honor not only to be their leader but to be their colleague,” said George Feldenkrais, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Perry Ellis International. “I want to thank each and every individual helping to bring this together, providing much-needed warm apparel for those affected by this terrible tragedy.”

Partnering with Port Logistics Group, PEI’s New Jersey warehouse and inventory management company, the Atlantic City Rescue Mission and Chabad Lubavitch of Staten Island, clothing donations will be accepted from now until November 16th in order to speed up donations and distribute all goods before Thanksgiving. Located at 125 Castle Road, Secaucus, NJ, 07094, donations will be accepted via mail or in-person between 9am-5pm. Packages should be clearly marked Attn: Hurricane Relief Effort.

The first email to consumers blasted last Friday, November 9th giving people a heads-up to start gathering items while final donation details were being hammered out. With Port Logistics Group’s warehouses damaged, associates worked throughout the weekend to bring the 125 Castle location up and running in order to handle the influx. On Wednesday, November 7th, a follow-up email with address, times and outreach partners was released to the company’s www.perryellis.com, www.originalpenguin.com, www.rafaellasportswear.com, www.cubavera.com and www.candccalifornia.com fan base with the subject line "Hurricane Sandy Relief. Share Your Warmth, We'll Match It."

"Like everyone in the region, we, along with our associates, are facing these challenges together. As we have before, we have weathered the storm, now we will rise above its aftermath together," continued Mr. Feldenkrais. "We have associates who have lost their homes and the memories within it, yet are using all the strength they have to help others in need, and others driving sixty miles out of their way to pick up colleagues who are stranded with no means of transportation. The altruism I am witnessing is extremely moving. It makes me proud to be part of such an inspiring team."

The company's Perry Ellis and Cubavera full-price and outlet stores also jumped on board with the relief effort with an at-register donation option. From now until December 31, 2012, customers have the opportunity to donate any amount to sufferers of this unfortunate tragedy. For their generosity, donors will receive 10% off their purchase with donation of $5 or more. 100% of the funds collected will be donated to the American Red Cross Disaster Fund.

The Original Penguin Bryant Park location in Manhattan (1077 Avenue of the Americas at 41st street) is also hosting an in-store benefit on November 15th from 5-8pm where 10% of sales will go to the Hurricane Sandy Relief Fund.
